Money in other word Banknote has become an integral part of our existence in the present day world. Personally I am engaged in the field of banknote designing and manufacturing industry for almost two decades. There was a time when nobody paid any hid to laying importance of visually impaired people in currency transactions. But now a days, it has become a norm or so to say convention to design currency notes keeping in view the need and comfort of visually impaired people. During the process of designing Euro this point received great significance.

Usefulness of banknotes to the visually impaired and blind people cannot be over emphasized. But practically there is no visible effort to orient them with currency notes. Most of them learn some technique of their own. Their life could be made little easier in relation to handling hard cash had they been given some basic training on the subject.

With this end view we are launching the humble effort to organize " 1st Global Awareness Programme on Banknotes for the Blind". I wish our effort helps the blind and the visually impaired people to carry out routine money transaction easy and they do it with self-confidence.
