Message

Money is one of the most important components of life. Blind people also need to use the banknote for their daily life. Keeping this in the view currency notes need to possess and, many banknotes do possess, some features apart from security feature for the benefit of the blind or visually impaired persons.

I appreciate the endeavour by International Institute of Currency Technology (IICT) in organizing a seminar exclusively for the blinds to educate them on currency note which is significant. I strongly feel that “1st Global Awareness Program on Banknote for the Blind” will be beneficial for the society as a whole by creating a sense of awareness for the blind in particular by raising their level of self-confidence in the use of banknotes.

I wish this seminar a grand success.
